POLICE SEARCH FOR MORONS IN 'LITTLE ITALY'

Lynch Threats Heard In Hunt For Slayer Of Small Girl

Called One Of Most Atrocious Crimes In Chicago History

Chicago, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Threats of lynching voiced by aroused residents of "Little Italy" today spurred the hunt for the moron who slew five year old Antoinette Tiritilli.

Mutters of swift vengeance were heard among the crowd of angry neighbors who gathered in the vicinity of the alley where the pretty little girl's throat was slashed last night by a "short, fat white man."

Horrified by one of the most atrocious crimes in recent Chicago history, detective squads seized four men—one of them corresponding to the description of the assailant gasped out by the tiny victim before she died.

Fifth man, Joseph Brabeck, 45, an ex-convict who had served three prison sentences, one for molesting children, was being sought for questioning, Police Capt. John P. Stege said.

Brabeck, who weighs 248 pounds, Stege asserted, was in the Pontiac Ill., reformatory from 1903 to 1905 for burglary. In 1906 he was sentenced for a moronic crime, Stege said and was released in 1909.

In 1923 Brabeck was sentenced to one to 14 years for molesting children, Stege declared, and was released March 20, 1932.

Investigators regarded as significant the story of a girl and two small boys who reported they had been accosted by a stout, stubby man near the McLaren school several hours before Antoinette was dragged to her death from the yard of that school. They said he offered them a quarter but hurried off when a pedestrian approached.

Officials arranged a showup of the suspects in the presence of the youngsters at the Maxwell street police station.

While the grief-stricken mother remained at home with her other two daughters—one of them eight, the other only one—Antoinette's father, Anthony Tiritilli, a WPA worker, attended the inquest.

"Nobody could have done this for revenge," he sobbed. "I have no enemies."

Dr. Jerry Kearns, coroner's physician, determined a sharp instrument, probably a razor, had been used to sever the child's jugular vein. He ascertained she had not been criminally assaulted. The inquest was then continued to Dec. 1.

Manifestly shocked by the slaying, Superintendent of Schools W. H. Johnson ordered all teachers and principals to report suspicious strangers to the police without delay and urged them to instruct the pupils to be vigilant in the future.

Clark Howell, Sr. Dies in Georgia; Rites Tomorrow

Editor and Pubisher Was Close Friend Of the President

Atlanta, Nov. 14. — (AP) — A two months illness claimed the life today of Clark Howell, Sr., editor and president of the Atlanta Constitution and Democratic national committeeman from Georgia.

The 73-year old publisher, a close friend of President Roosevelt, died at 7:15 a. m. (E. S. T.) at his north side residence after two operations failed to correct an intestinal ailment.

He was an early supporter of Mr. Roosevelt for president and was long identified with state and national politics. Only last June he returned to the state's Democratic committee post which he had held from 1896 to 1924.

Upon resuming this important party assignment Howell succeeded Governor Eugene Talmadge. He had supported Talmadge in every race he ran for state office, but broke with the governor when he began his attacks on the New Deal.

Opposed to Senator Richard B. Russell's candidacy for the United States Senate in 1932, Howell supported him against Talmadge in the Senate race this year. Russell won re-election by a landslide.

Although a staunch Democrat, Howell held appointments to commissions under both Democratic and Republican national administrations.

Howell is survived by his widow, the former Mrs. Margaret Cannon Carr of Durham, N. C.; four sons, Clark Howell, Jr., general manager of the Constitution; Comer Howell, Julian Howell and Albert Howell; and four sisters, Miss Rosalie Howell of New York, and Mrs. R. L. Foreman, Mrs. R. G. McAlliley and Mrs. A. A. Heidenreich, all of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at 3 p. m. at Spring Hill chapel, by the Rev. W. W. Memminger, pastor of All Saints Episcopal church. The burial will be conducted privately at West View cemetery.

REJECT PLAN TO ARBITRATE WITH JOHN L. LEWIS

George Berry Makes Proposal To End Labor War

Green Says Plan Not Acceptable To Either Side

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 14.—(AP)—American Federation of Labor leaders spurned today a proposal by George L. Berry, President Roosevelt's coordinator for industrial recovery, to end their war with John L. Lewis by arbitration.

Berry, also president of the printing pressmen's union, and other labor leaders long have insisted upon arbitration to settle disputes with employers and suggested it should be used to stop this internal row.

William Green, federation president, replied that Berry's proposal "probably would not be acceptable to either side," and that his executive council already had suggested the only satisfactory peace plan.

(Lewis' United Mine Workers and nine allied unions were suspended by the council two months ago for forming the committee for industrial organization. They are trying to bring all the workers in each big industry into one big union without regard for traditional A. F. of L. craft union lines. The federation's annual convention here next week will be asked to expel the rebel unions. Labor men agree that this move would start the greatest labor war since the A. F. of L. displaced the Knights of Labor as the Keystone of the American labor movement 50 years ago.)

John P. Frey, president of the federation's metal trades department, said Berry's plan came too late.

"Arbitration might have settled the Civil War before Fort Sumpter was fired upon," he added tersely.

Arthur P. Wharton, president of the powerful Machinists Union, and John Coefield, president of the Plumbers and a leader among the Building Trades Unions, rejected the proposal without reservation.

Although Berry emphasized he suggested arbitration as a labor man and not as a federal official, Coefield, a Republican, told reporters it smacked of government interference in labor affairs.

Weaving a Church—With Steel

Its entire framework composed of small rods interwoven to form a network of steel welded into a single unit, St. Augustin's Catholic church, shown above, in Culver City, Calif., represents the latest method of frame construction. The framework was moved to the building site in panel sections 12 by 20 feet. This type of construction is said to be resistant to fire, termites, and earth shock. The old wooden church being replaced is seen to the rear.

ENGAGEMENT OF F.D.R. JR., ETHEL DUPONT IS TOLD

Wedding Announced To Take Place Latter Part Of June

Miss DuPont Was Selected "Most Beautiful Girl"

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 14—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Du Pont announced tonight the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ethel Du Pont, to Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The wedding will take place the latter part of June.

Miss Du Pont is the eldest of the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Du-Pont of Greenville, Del. Du Pont is a member of the board of the E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Company.

She is a niece of Lammot Du Pont, president of the company; Pierre S. Du Pont, chairman of the board; and Irenee Du Pont, a member of the board.

Miss Du Pont attended the Ethel Walker school in Simsbury, Conn. Indications of her friendship with young Roosevelt became apparent in 1934 because of his frequent visits to the Walker school while a freshman at Harvard.

Miss Du Pont, 21, blonde and of medium height, was selected by the artist, Don Flowers, as the most beautiful and most eligible of the wealthy "bachelor girls" in America. She is an ardent horsewoman and skillful swimmer, and at one time took instructions in flying. Last summer, with her parents and sister, she traveled in Europe.

The friendship between Miss Du Pont and Roosevelt received wide publicity in April, 1934, after he smashed the camera of a newspaper photographer who snapped them among the spectators at a wrestling show in Philadelphia.

Roosevelt attended Miss Du Pont's debut June 27, 1934, at a dinner dance at her home. Legal representatives of the family denied subsequent rumors they were engaged. The following December she was a guest at the White House at a week-end house party given by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt for their sons and friends.

Roosevelt's enthusiasm in his romance took him on an airplane trip down New York harbor in March, 1936, to meet a ship on which Miss Du Pont was returning from Bermuda, and to ride with her to the ship's pier. During the last year he has attended several social functions with her.

Young Roosevelt is a week end guest at the Du Pont home.

The family's announcement included mention of his graduation from the Groton school and his membership in the Harvard class of 1937. It listed his clubs as the Fly, Iroquois, and Hasty Pudding.

STRIKE LEADERS TO EXTEND AREA OF DOCK TIEUPS

Threaten To Visit Gulf, Atlantic Ports Soon

Grow Impatient As Owners Refuse To Meet Demands

San Francisco, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Maritime strike leaders threatened today to send western longshoremen on a "swing through Gulf and Atlantic ports and complete a dock tieup" unless shipowners talk peace soon.

At the same time a committee of San Francisco Industrial association warned business men to organize for "our common defense" against an "in land march" of the longshoremen's union.

Two west coast strikes not directly connected with the maritime walkout were settled but others appeared to complicate the general labor situation.

Striking "rank-and-file" seamen used an airplane and a motor boat to picket the U. S. liner Washington, which became the key ship in the New York walkout.

The Industrial Association committee said more than 18,000 men were striking against San Francisco industry and more than 60 plants were closed and "surrounded by mobs of pickets" whose numbers were "growing daily."

"Your turn may be next in the march inland of business destruction now being carried on by Local 38-44 (San Francisco of the International Longshoremen's Association," said the committee statement.

"Regardless of your present relations with your employes, or their loyalty to you, your business may be stopped in its tracks any day, any hour."

With strikes dotting the Bay area and maritime peace negotiations at a virtual impasse, Mayor Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco telephoned the white house to arrange a conference with President Roosevelt and Secretary of Labor Perkins. He said he would leave for Washington tomorrow.

Rossi did not reveal what his course would be. President Roosevelt said yesterday there were no special plans for federal mediation in the maritime walkout.

Insurance Broker Sails for Utopia

New York, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Tired of civilization, Austin Beck, 37-year old Swampscott, Mass., insurance broker, sailed today for the Bahama Islands to establish a rustic utopia for similarly afflicted souls.

"Thnigs are not sufficient to enjoy life in the United States," he remarked languidly, leaning on the rail on the liner Munargo.

Partners in the utopian project, the policy writer explained, would be Sir Edwin and Lady Tyrrell Beck of London, distant relatives, who Beck said are getting tired of being kept on edge by the possibility of war in Europe.

"I don't think we shall have any trouble buying an island and setting up a local government. We will remain under the British flag because my companions don't want to leave the crown," he added.

Beck indicated that other disgruntled Americans might be admitted to the colony, but that preference would be given to Londoners. He did not explain why.

RUSSELL DEATH IS OPENED FOR INVESTIGATION

First Called Suicide, Reid Russell Case Is Being Probed

Found Dead Year Ago At Governeur Morris Home

Los Angeles, Nov. 14.—(AP)—On the lawn swing at the palatial Gouverneur Morris beach home where his body was found last September, detectives Monday will try to reenact the death of Reid Russell, 28, first called suicide but now the center of a reopened investigation.

Capt. Clyde Plummer of the district attorneys office said today investigators would return to the writer's Manhattan beach residence after questioning Morris, his wife, Mrs. Rugh Morris, and Lila Lee, film actress, a guest at the Morris home at the time Russell's body was found.

The Morrises and Miss Lee came voluntarily to Plummer's office today to aid in the inquiry, reopened at the request of the dead man's mother, Mrs. Victoria Russell.

Mrs. Morris told Plummer that several days after Russell's death she found a note from him which said:

"I told you I would do it and now you see."

The investigator later made public a sympathetic letter Morris wrote Mrs. Russell shortly after her son's death which said in part:

"Your boy had my affection and I think I had his. x x x why he came here to end his troubles I cannot know. He was always so courteous and considerate. But surely he was old enough to know he was letting people who had been kind to him in for a lot of slander, scandal, suspicion and God knows what."

In both the first and the present inquiry Mrs. Morris and others said Russell had been depressed over financial troubles and several times talked of suicide.

Mrs. Morris said she burned the note because she "thought it best," declaring the case had been closed and "I thought it a mistake to bring it up again," Plummer reported.

Russell had been a frequent visitor at the Morris home. After his death, investigators were told no one knew he was about the place at the time. A rusty pistol was found in his lap, and there was a bullet hole in the back of the swing, officers reported. But no shell or bullet was found.

Plummer said today he did not believe Russell killed himself in the swing. An automatic pistol, he said, "throws a shell only a few feet and the bullet would have spent its force going through his head and would have fallen somewhere around."

Germany Shakes Off Another Agreement Of Peace Treaty

Resumes Control of Traffic On Her Rivers; Violates Versailles Pact

Berlin, Nov. 14. —(AP)— Germany shook off another of her world war "peace shackles" today by resuming control of traffic on her rivers and repudiating international governing commissions set up by the treaty of Versailles.

Signatories of the Versailles pact were advised that Germany considers the internationalization clause to assure foreign traffic equal rights with German shipping is no longer valid.

Henceforth river traffic and the strategic Kiel Canal will be subject to only German regulation, the third Reich announced.

A foreign office spokesman said the step was a "mere shaking off of Versailles control" but that traffic would not be affected, although renunciation of the internationalization clause put Germany in a position to restrict foreign traffic on the upper Rhine if it should be forfeited or on any other river in the event of emergency.

The newest break from world war treaty restrictions followed by eight months rearmament of the Rhineland, also in violation of the Versailles pact and a step that roused France to vigorous protest.

Specifically affected by today's nullification of part ZII of the Versailles pact were the upper Rhine and Moselle, the upper Danube, the Elbe and the Oder Rivers.

Traffic on these rivers has been administered by commissions representing interested nations and with German representation in the minority.

Czechoslovakian rights to a free port at Hamburg, a 99-year grant under the treaty, will not be affected, authoritative sources said. Czechoslovakia has not exercised her right to a free port at German Stettin.

TORPEDO SHIP

Marseille, France, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Reports received here today said the Spanish government freighter Manuel was torpedoed and sunk by the Fascist cruiser Canaris with a loss of 18 lives.

Nine members of the crew were saved in a lifeboat.

The ship, carrying food and clothing to Barcelona, was reported torpedoed off Cape Creus.

Mrs. Samuel Darley of the Durbin community paid the city a visit Saturday.

Fascist Airmen Bomb Workers Gathered In Large Madrid Square

Madrid, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Fascist aviators killed 52 persons and wounded at least 150 today in sudden bombardment of a crowded capital plaza where workers had gathered to discuss the defense of Madrid.

Today's raid was one of the most disastrous to the capital and damage was extensive. Dead and wounded lay about the streets, panic swept the crowd. One bomb crashed through a supposedly bomb proof subway.

In an angry demand for reprisal, Military Governor Jose Miaja exhorted his troops to "wipe out 50,000 of the enemy. Mash through them. Wipe them out.'

The so-called "international legion"—composed of foreigners fighting on the side of the Spanish government—repelled an attempt by the Fascists to enter Madrid over the Los Franceses railroad bridge across the Manzanares River, which skirts the capital.

The two forces fought a bloody machinegun battle before the insurgents were thrown back.

At the end of the ninth day of Madrid's siege, a government column was reported pushing northward form Aranjuez, threatening the right flank of the Fascists south of Madrid.

The all-powerful defense Junta had been sitting since early afternoon, awaiting reports of the advance from Aranjuez. Fascists bombing planes were said to be concentrating on that town, 30 miles south of the capital.

The war ministry, in a note said "some enemy concentrations have observed on the front." None of the usual artillery fire was heard in Madrid, however.

The mass meeting of workers had been called for 8 a. m. at the Cloieta Atocha Plaza to discuss new plans for the defense of Madrid.

Organizers cancelled the meeting at the last minute but hundreds gathered in the huge plaza on the southside of the capital unware of the change in plans.

Suddenly a roar of motors sounded above. Three tri-motor bombers flying low swept across the square.

Before the crowds could scatter, five bombs exploded in rapid succession. They were believed to be 225-pound projectiles filled with high explosives used for blasting fortifications.

Bodies of men, women and children were hurled to the streets beside the carcasses of mules and horses killed by the explosion. Many bodies were maimed beyond recognition.

Dozen suffered shrapnel wounds. They lay moaning for help, unable to move.

Those uninjured scrambled pell mell through side streets opening on the plaza.

One of the bombers ripped a hole in a subway and broke electric transmission lines and water mains.

Every window in the vicinity was shattered and several apartments were wrecked.

The facade of the ornate ministry of public works was wrecked. Two large stone columns of a building nearby toppled into the street.

Heavy iron gates and a high fence surrounding the Anthropological museum were wrecked from their supports and the front of the building was damaged.

Windows of a train in a shed nearby at the Atocha station were broken. Showers of broken glass injured several persons inside the station.

A number of patients of the provincial hospital two blocks away were thrown from their beds. Store fronts within a quarter mile radius were shattered.

Water from broken mains mingled with blood of injured and flowed through a wreckage of carts and automobiles parked in the plaza.

The government announced 600 fascists with full equipment and considerable artillery had deserted from Tarienta.

The defenders declared they were pressing the enemy hard in the vicinity of Sensena and along the Manzanares river.

The hospital at Bilbao, the government said, was bombed by a fascist plane yesterday.

A fascist shell yesterday tore thru the roof of No. 11 Carmen street in the center of the capital and killed a baby. The baby's mother died of a heart attack.

Mrs. Simpson Is On Society Lists

London, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Wallis Simpson, chic friend of King Edward, has started a scramble among London's hostesses by her apparent intention to keep up social activities while awaiting her final divorce decree six months hence.

Mrs. Simpson attended a concert last night at the Yugoslavian legation, where guests included Edward's brother, the Duke of Kent, and other British nobles and their wives.

And, friends said, the appearance left little doubt that London's hostesses have her on their list for the season.

The chances are that Mrs. Simpson will be invited to most of the really important social functions.

Mrs. Simpson is not being seen in public with Edward, however, but friends said they had ample opportunity to meet at her home or at the King's Belvedere palace.

Guy Wilcay of Arenzville was in the city Saturday.

FASCIST ARMY REPORTED OVER CRUCIAL RIVER

Late Unofficial Dispatch Says Rebels Ready For Dash

Manzanares River Defense Has Kept Insurgents Back

With Fascist Troops Outside Madrid, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Unconfirmed and unofficial reports late tonight said Fascist troops had reached the edge of Madrid after fording the shallow Manzanares river.

The insurgents were said to have crossed the stream between the Toledo and Princess bridges, south of the city.

(The latest dispatch from Madrid said Fascists trying to enter the capital over the Los Frances bridge had been repelled. No word had been received of any Fascist entry into the city.)

Government guns were almost completely silent in the region south of Madrid today.

Fascist artillery, meanwhile, shelled the northern side of the city, farthest away from the insurgent troops—the usual procedure to cut off a retreat.

West of Madrid, Fascist fighters surrounded 2,000 government militiamen in an olive grove and poured heavy shell-fire into the demoralized Socialists.

The government soldiers were seen running helter-skelter among the trees.

Many of them lugged machine guns and some times they paused to let loose bullets at their attackers.

The government radio announced the defending force south of Madrid had withdrawn from some positions as a matter of "prudence."

An inspection of that region today, however, disclosed the Fascists were then still nearly two miles south of the Toledo bridge over the Manzanares. Southeast of Madrid, government militiamen made a strong counter-attack at Cerro De Los Angels.

Only a desultory rifle fire was heard around Madrid.

A Fascist battery shelled the Toledo bridgehead preparatory, it was reported, to a general attack Sunday in an attempt to occupy the capital.

The insurgents claimed the capture of Usera, a workers' suburb just south of Madrid on the Mazanares, after a bombardment of the town Friday.

Fascist officers said they found the streets of Usera littered with government dead. They declared the government troops had built modern, concrete trenches for their unsuccessful defense of the town.

Navy May Build New Dirigibles

Washington, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Despite the Akron and the Macon disasters, the navy high command is studying recommendations for resuming the development of big, lighter-than-air dirigibles.

A new construction program has been recommended by the Bureau of Aeronautics, the annual report of Rear Admiral A. B. Cook, chief of the bureau, disclosed today. The report also asked increases in the navy's combat airplane strength, aviator personnel, and shore facilities for them.

Admiral Cook noted that his predecessor, Rear Admiral E. J. King, had recommended to Secretary Swanson last May a continuing program of dirigible construction in line with a report presented by a committee of scientists which studied the question for almost a year.

Both the report and the bureau's recommendations now are being considered by the naval high command and are expected to form the basis for a final determination of policy with respect to large lighter-than-air ships.

TALE OF A TUB

St. Louis, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Carrying a typewriter and camera to earn expenses, a Chicago author, C. H. Preston, set sail today down the Mississippi in a tiny craft for Key West, Fla., thence to Cuba, Hayti and back to Chicago via the Great Lakes.

The single-masted boat, which Preston constructed, draws but six inches of water. The writer said he had little experience with sail boats. He is 32, single.

Miss Margaret Crum was a Franklin shopper in the city Saturday afternoon.

Glory in The Corn Field

When Red Grange finished his meteoric career at the University of Illinois in 1925, it was said that a million dollars worth of commercial contracts were waiting for him.

When Jesse Owens, American colored collegian, captured four firsts and several other honors in the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin, he was pestered almost to death for exhibitions in both European and American cities.

The other day, when Carl Carlson of Iowa won the national championship of America as a corn husker, he got only a measly $200 cash prize and a gold cup.

There was little wonder that the champion of all the corn fields in the land felt rather peeved at the meager material rewards for his prowess. Little satisfaction to him was the crowd of 100,000 which swarmed over the fields. He exclaimed in bitterness at the end of the day that he had "done $10,000 worth of work."

But at the end of the day of huge crowds and excitement, Carl and the other sturdy farm hands who unsuccessfully competed with him for the championship returned again to their farm homes, their own corn fields or cattle feeding lots, their drudgery and muscle-tiring labors.

The farmer's life may be the most satisfying one in the long run, and thousands of persons have so declared it; but when an ambitious farm boy makes the grade as champion corn husker of his own county, then his state and at last of the nation, he begins to think that there should be something better for him than the old grind.

The movie producers have grabbed almost every situation in life, now or in the distant past, to weave into a picture that will draw big money at the box office. Perhaps some movie genius will eventually produce a real down-on-the-farm scenario that "packs them in." Then Carl Carlson and his fellow corn huskers will have their chance at something more remunerative than the applause of the crowd.

Barometers on Wheels

Welcome to the 1937 motor cars! Jacksonville dealers are beginning to display the sleek, shiny new cars, and to advertise their merits.

The public immediately sits up and takes notice. Interest in the new models is said to be more pronounced and widespread this season than ever before. The industry that for the last year has led the recovery parade is fast establishing itself as the mechanized barometer of American life. Probably no single industry is so much a part of the country's daily existence or so expressive of it.

Now that the new cars are on the show floors and in the headlines, what is their message to America? Their major announcement probably is this: The jazz era definitely has passed. The jazz era, of course, was the celebration period for new speed as well as strange noises. But speed no longer is new or nationally intoxicating.

With speed no longer stressed by the makers of automobiles, it is apparent that the public is no longer concerned with it. Speed continues to be a problem, but it has ceased to be the ruling passion of the times. The demand for safety and sanity has pushed to the front. The automobiles of 1937 tell the story—the universal steel bodies, safety glass as a matter of course, interiors more free from hazards, headlights that illuminate the highway without glaring.

An increasing demand for comfort and luxury is revealed in the 1937 automibles. If, as some prophets predict, the human race eventually will lose them in sublime ease. Better shock absorbers, brakes that bring the car to a cushioned stop, drivers' seats adjustable to fit the shape as well as the length of the driver, greater head room—comfort is the second passion of the coming year.

As in other years the radically changing body styles move on with the parade because it is well known in the motor car industry that buyers will scramble for the latest designs. Each year, with the announcement of the new motor cars, the public finds a new adventure. If they don't buy, they can at least admire.

Alton Saves Sanatorium

Madison county voters recently performed a service for one of their local institutions similar to the action taken by Morgan county voters a few years ago. They voted a continuation of a tax for support of their Madison county tuberculosis sanatorium, thus preventing the closing of the institution. The Madison county people went a bit further, voting to increase the tax for support of the sanatorium.

When the increased tax was proposed in Madison county, some opposition arose among the people, owing to charges that the institution had not been properly conducted. The whole matter was fully discussed and the ultimate outcome seemed to be that the minds of the voters were impressed with the good work which the sanatorium had performed, in spite of some alleged laxity which had crept in at times. The good over-balanced the bad in the whole picture, and the voters decided that they would pay an additional tax to keep the institution going, with its service to a class of citizens who often cannot provide their own proper care at home when victims of the white plague.

This was one instance where people did not oppose a higher tax where they could see just how their money was being spent, and the beneficial results of it.

Sale of The Browns

Sale of the St. Louis Browns, American league baseball club, did not cause much noise in baseball circles. The Brown's haven't been going anywhere of late—they have had a hard time several seasons to keep out of the cellar. But some of the wiser old baseball prognosticators vision something over the horizon that may bring a turn in affairs of the St. Louis club. The purchasers were for the most part St. Louis men. In other words, the Brown's are going to be a strictly home town team.

Who doesn't remember the home town ball club? It was the pride of the community, and loyal fans would fight for the honor of the team. They often did. The home town ball club was an institution. Its rabid backers would put it up against the world, regardless of results.

Will the home town spirit be instilled into the Brown's and St. Louis fans as a result of the change in ownership? Will the pitchers try a little harder when they face the seven other clubs of the league, just because the Brown's organization is a St. Louis-owned team? Will the fans get behind the lowly Browns, and by their interest and patronage boost the team up among the leading contenders?

Look at the box scores along about May or June next year. They will answer the questions that are now in minds of the fans, who believe that a change of ownership may be what the Brown's have been waiting for.

An Historic Anniversary

Next Wednesday, Nov. 18, will be an historic anniversary in the United States. It was on that date in 1865 that slavery was abolished in this country. From that date America began to be a really free nation, one in which the principles and doctrines of Abraham Lincoln, who taught us the love of freedom, became realities.

That the nation could not exist half slave and half free was the warning of the great Lincoln, who then proceeded to fight with all the spirit and energy that ebbed his lanky, bony frame, that the nation might exist as a union of free states. He was a martyr to this cause, but his doctrines continue to influence those who govern.

All lovers of their country hope that this democracy never sees the day when the issue of freedom be the cause of a civil war, such as that which preceded the date, Nov. 18, 1865.

REPORT THE DRUNKEN DRIVERS

Private Citizen Can Aid in Removing Menace From Streets

From the Toledo Blade.

A police department short wave broadcast the other day was about as follows: "All scout cars, especially No. 7, watch for black sedan, license No. ——, coming from Glendale avenue down Broadway toward the city. Driver reported to be intoxicated."

We don't know whether the police intercepted that particular drunken driver, but other similar broadcasts will put a stop to the mad, zig-zag driving of some befuddled irresponsibles at the steering wheels. Some collisions and personal injuries will be prevented, possibly some lives will be saved, for this is an effective modern accident prevention system, the more general use of which should be encouraged.

If you see a drunken driver careening his car down the street telephone the police instantly. Let them broadcast the information to all scout cars and the police scouts may be relied upon to "get their man"—or woman—probably in nine such cases out of ten.

A total of $11,775 has been alloted to 863 persons who will receive old-age assistance checks this month in this county, Fred Deatherage, county supervisors, said yesterday after receiving notification from the state department of public welfare, old-age assistance division.

The amount is an increase of $945 over the amount alloted to persons who have qualified for checks in October, and covers most of the persons who will receive assistance this month.

The county supervisor said that the local bureau is well up on its work.

The report from the state department stated that it was forwarding checks to 785 persons totalling $10,717 who have been on the roles regularly, and that 78 new applicants would receive their first checks, totaling $1,058. Tdere may be more applications passed by the state board this month, the county supervisor said.

Last month there were a total of 797 persons who were granted old-age assistance, their checks totalling $10,830.

The checks will average $13.64 this month.

THE BOY GIANT

To the Editors of the Journal and Courier: I read in the Saturday JOURNAL an account of the short visit of the Alton "Boy Giant," Robert Wadlow to Jacksonville. I see that he claims to be the tallest man in the world. Now when I was living in Tucson, Arizona, ten years ago, I saw the Texas giant, Jake Ehrlich during the Rodeo. He claimed to be 8 feet six inches tall and the tallest man then living. He was in Tucson at least twice and during his stay he rode one of the Rapid Transit busses and my son Howard was the driver. He was so tall that he had some difficulty in getting in and out of the bus. He was a prime favorite with the little children at that time and had a brother of normal height who was a student at the Arizona University. I never saw his measure taken but he was the tallest man I ever looked at.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

Roosevelt Isn't Sure to Have Clear Sailing in Congress . . . Legislators Haven't Been "Rubber Stamps" . . . Many of President's Pet Measures Balked . . . Interest Centers on House Leader Race.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Jacksonville Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent

Washington, Nov. 14.—Predictions as to the harmony or discord which may be expected between a president and a new Congress are as often wrong as right.

Checking the list, it would appear that this Congress would be neither more radical nor more conservative than the last.

However, Congress in the main is more conservative than the president. It can be more "radical" when large pressure groups are bent on raiding the treasury, but it can also be much more conservative when expensive high-pressure lobbyists from Wall Street come to Washington to block a White House program.

"Obedience" Is Doubtful

There's a common theory now that Roosevelt need but snap his fingers in the next session to exact congressional obedience. Only 17 of the 96 senators will be Republicans and that includes several progressives. Only 89 of 435 House members will be Republicans. So it is argued that Congress will again be a "rubber stamp" for Roosevelt.

This theory fails to take several things into account. Although many members of Congress rode back into office on the Roosevelt coattails, that doesn't mean that any of them will support Roosevelt legislation out of gratitude.

Even though it will be impossible to find any effective opposition outside the Democratic ranks, those ranks have managed to provide effective opposition in the past. And a president proverbially has a harder time in his second term to control Congress.

Furthermore, despite all the speeches of Republican campaigners and Liberty Leaguers, it just isn't true that Congress has served as Roosevelt's "rubber stamp." It became especially recalcitrant after the big Democratic victory in the 1934 elections, when nearly all candidates rode in on New Deal popularity.

F. R. Often Overruled

Roosevelt was overruled by the Senate when he sought American adherence to the World Court. Nearly all his tax measures have been chewed almost beyond recognition. His vetoes of veterans' benefit bills have been overridden.

Congress made important changes in the securities, stock market, and public utility holding company measures. Repeated administration efforts to obtain adequate food and drug protective legislation have failed. The AAA amendments were blocked entirely at one session and passed at the next only after extensive rejiggering.

The long haggling and revision which preceded passage of the $4,500,000,000 work relief bill, including Roosevelt's defeat on the prevailing wage issue, caused the president's prestige to suffer.

And few will ever know how many legislative proposals were snatched back from Capitol Hill or buried before they saw daylight—on the assurance of congressional leaders that they could not pass.

Everybody for Himself?

Some observers see the next Congress as a group of shifting blocs in which nearly every member, as usual, will be primarily out for himself.

Labor legislation has usually had little trouble during the New Deal and probably will have less than ever now. But legislation affecting corporate setups and corporate profits may encounter hard sledding.

It will be important to see whether Sam Rayburn of Texas or John O'Connor of New York is elected floor leader in the House.

Rayburn is the administration choice, although it's uncertain how emphatically the White House plans to make its wishes known. If he is elected, Roosevelt can at least be sure that his causes are in strong and friendly hands.

Already, however, the president and his closest advisers are considering the likelihood that radio appeals over the heads of congressmen to their constituents may prove the most effective technique in obtaining cooperation.

Commission Names FearneyhoughHead In Reorganization

Erwin Aufdenkamp Takes His Oath and Place on County Board

Walter Fearneyhough, of the Lynnville community, was named chairman of the county board of commissioners Saturday morning when the board reorganized as a result of the election of Nov. 3.

Erwin Aufdenkamp who was elected in the general election to a place on the board, was given his oath of office by County Clerk Fred Brockhouse, and became a duly recognized member of the board when his commission arrived from Springfield.

William Rees who served as chairman last year retired from the board as soon as his successor was named, according to law governing the election of county commissioners. Others elected in the general election will take their offices January 1, 1937.

Clifton Davis, the other member of the commission, put the motion to name Mr. Fearneyhough as chairman of the board, and Mr. Aufdenkamp seconded it. Prior to Saturday's meeting, and since the election, the board has been transacting business with only two commissioners.

The board of commissioners is now composed of two Republicans and one Democrat.

To Hear Railroads On Tax Objections

Scott County Court Sets Date for Hearing; Close Land Sale

Winchester.—The tax objections of the Wabash and C. B. & Q. Railroads to various items of the tax levy for 1935 in Scott county will be heard in County Court, Wednesday, November 18th. The railroads have objected to the levies for poor relief, tuberculosis sanitorium and blind pension, in excess of the 25 cent rate, which is the statutory limitation for the county tax. The railroads have also objected to the school taxes in several of the school districts in the county.

Harry Gidney, sheriff of Scott county, closed the sale of land for delinquent taxes last Tuesday and while final computation of taxes has not been completed, he said that collections have been very satisfactory. There were only a few pieces of property disposed of during the course of the sale for delinquent taxes.

The Economy Car in the Low-Price Field

THE NEW 60-HORSEPOWER FORD V-8

It is natural to ask why a 60-horsepower engine is added to the Ford line for 1937. The answer is simply that the smaller engine makes possible a saving in weight — a car that costs less to run — and a lower price.

The 1937 Ford with the new 60-horsepower engine is for those who want maximum economy with good performance. It offers the smoothness and quietness you expect of a V-8 — even at speeds up to 70 miles an hour—with gasoline mileage so high that it creates an entirely new standard of economy.

New "60" Meets Many Needs

This Economy Car in the Low-price Field makes the Ford more than ever The Universal Car. It will appeal to families with small budgets. To salesmen who drive their own cars and want to pare expenses to the last penny. To farmers who need a rugged, inexpensive car for bad roads in all weathers. To fleet owners who must hold mileage costs down. To women whose cars are a part of the daily round of family or business duties. To two-car families as a general utility car . . . and to many others.

Improved 85-horsepower V-8

For those who want maximum performance with good economy, there is the improved 85-horsepower V-8 engine. It delivers the flashing speed and acceleration that more than three million Ford V-8 owners are already enjoying on the road. Yet improved carburetion enables it to give its thrilling performance with unusually good gasoline mileage.

You are invited to see the New Ford V-8 Cars for 1937—in two engine sizes but only one body size—at the showroom of the Ford dealer nearest you.

$25 a month, after usual down-payment, buys any model 1937 Ford V-8 Car — from any Ford dealer — anywhere in the United States. Ask your Ford dealer about the easy payment plans of the Universal Credit Company.

FEATURES OF THE 1937 FORD V-8 CARS

APPEARANCE—Distinctive modern design. Headlamps streamlined into fender aprons. Modern lid-type hood. Larger luggage space and spare tire concealed within body. Interiors entirely new. Slanting V-type windshield opens in all closed cars.

BRAKES—You want two things in a modern braking system. Dependability—and soft pedal action. The Easy-Action Safety Brakes in the new Ford give you both, with "the safety of steel from pedal to wheel." Cable and conduit control type. Self-energizing—car momentum is used to help apply the brakes. About one-third less pedal pressure is required to stop the car.

SAFETY—All-steel construction. Top, sides, floor and frame welded into a single steel unit of great protective strength. Safety Glass throughout at no extra charge.

COMFORT AND QUIET—By every modern standard of design, the 1937 Ford is a big, roomy car. Extra space in the body where you want it—not taken up by the engine under the hood. Comfort of the Ford Center-Poise Ride is further increased by smoother action of the long-tapering springs with new pressure lubrication. New methods of mounting body and engine, and other refinements, make this a quieter car.

You'll Treasure This Old New England Recipe

COLONIAL PUMPKIN PIE IS A GEM—AND IT'S EQUALLY DELICIOUS MADE WITH SQUASH

If you want to give your family a real treat, serve this Colonial Pumpkin Pie. Every husband wants to know when he'll get it again! Every woman eagerly begs for the recipe.

No wonder! For this not an ordinary pumpkin pie. It's from an old New England recipe, famous for generations. The filling is spicy, lucious and golden. The crust is so tender and flaky it just melts in your mouth! No soggy undercrust either, if you follow the simple directions.

This, with many other fascinating cooking secrets and delicious recipes, will draw large audiences to the Journal-Courier Cooking School. Here Mrs. Baldridge, well-known homemaking expert, will demonstrate Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, at 9:00 a. m., in Illinois Theatre.

In her coveted recipes Mrs. Baldridge uses Spry, the new vegetable shortening because, she says, "Every last one of us likes to get compliments on our cooking. And you get plenty when you bake and fry with Spry."

Here's Mrs. Baldridge's recipe for Colonial Pumpkin Pie. It's so easily digestible, so full of spicy goodness, you'll want to serve it often during the fall and winter. It's equally tempting made with squash. For variety, serve it fresh from the oven sometimes while that irresistible spicy aroma still hovers over it. Or if you want an especially grand desert, garnish each portion with a swirl of whipped cream.

COLONIAL PUMPKIN PIE

1½ cups canned or cooked pumpkin (or squash)
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon allspice
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1½ cups rich milk, scalded
1 unbaked pie shell

Combine pumpkin, brown sugar, salt and spices and mix well. Add eggs and milk; cool.

Pour mixture into unbaked pie shell. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 30 to 40 minutes or until knife inserted comes out clean. Serve with sharp cheese.

FLAKY PIE CRUST

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1/3 cup Spry (the new vegetable shortening)
3 tablespoons cold water (about)

Sift flour and salt together. Add ⅔ of Spry and cut in until mixture is as fine as corn meal (so much quicker and easier with ready-creamed shortening). Add remaining Spry and continue cutting until particles are size of a navy bean. Sprinkle water, 1 tablespoon at a time, over mixture. With a fork, work lightly together until a dough is formed.

Roll Spry dough ⅛-inch thick and 3 inches larger than pie plate. Turn back edge and make fluted rim. Chill.

Millikin's Battering Rams Beat Blueboys By Score Of 6 To 0

Northwestern Sweeps Big Ten Conference Undefeated With Final Victory Over Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 14.—(AP)—Michigan's ailing but valiant Wolverines staged a heroic struggle against Northwestern's powerful gridiron machine today in Michigan stadium, but the Wildcats, sparked by Chunky Steve Toth, rolled on to a 9 to 0 victory, to complete a sweep of their Western conference football business for the season.

Immensely superior in every branch of the game, with the exception of sheer, fighting courage, the Wildcat pack was held to a 17-yard field goal and a single touchdown, both by Toth, 162-pound kicking and running star from Toledo.

Northwestern fumbled away two other scoring opportunities and on other occasions was stopped by the battling Wolverines, who earned the cheers of 40,000 spectators.

In battering down Michigan, to keep company with Iowa, Ohio State, Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin among its Big Ten victims, Northwestern piled up 264 yards by rushing to a mere 58 for the Wolverines, and had the edge in forward passing, but still had to settle for a nine-point margin.

Still showing traces of the looseness that characterized its close escape battle with Wisconsin last week, Northwestern was outplayed in the first period.

The Wildcats recovered from the shock of Michigan's first vicious charges and, although the machinery sputtered and stalled, took charge of the ball game near the end of the opening session.

The "Dashing Dons"—Don Heap and Don Geyer—and Olie Adelman provided the yardage as Northwestern advanced from its 48 to Michigan's 10, where the Wolverines dug it. On fourth down, Toth dropped back to his 17 and swung his right foot for the three points that proved enough to win.

Northwestern's touchdown, just three minutes before the final gun barked, followed Michigan's last desperate effort to score. A 29-yard placekick by George Marzonie, junior guard, fell just short of the cross-bar. Then a fumble by Michigan's John Smithers was recovered by Northwestern's John Zitko on the Wolverine 36.

On the first play, Kovatch romped 30 yards on his end-around specialty, and Toth went to work in earnest. Four times he crashed into the Michigan line, and the fourth time he went over. His try for the extra point was wide.

The drive that led to Marzonie's futile placekick was the brightest spot of the day for Michigan. Stark Ritchie, Jedric Sweet and Smithers collaborated in blasting out three first downs. Smithers flipped a pass to Barclay on the Wildcat 20 for the fourth first down, but the drive stopped there.

Northwestern	0	3	0	6—9

Northwestern scoring: Touchdown, Toth (sub for Geyer); field goal, Toth (place kick).

Western Teacher B Team Defeats I. C. Frosh Squad, 7 to 0

Recovered Fumble in First Quarter Paves Way to Only Score

Making the most of recovering an Illinois fumble deep in I. C. territory, the Western Teachers "B" team scored a touchdown in the first quarter Saturday morning to win from the Blueboy freshmen, 7 to 0, in the first of the Homecoming day football games.

The break came after the two teams had been running three plays, then punting. The ball changed possession in this manner five times. Then Hughes, the line crushing fullback of the Leathernecks, punted from his own 38 yard line into the end zone. On the first play, Mader was smeared on the 16 yard line. On the next play he was unable to get a good hold on the pass from center and fumbled, several Western linemen piling on the ball. From there it was a series of five plunges that put the pigskin on the one foot line from where Lambert plunged it across. Fiddler's placekick for the extra point was a beauty.

That was all the scoring there was. But the remainder of the game was hard and bitterly fought. Both teams relied on power plays in an attempt to make consistent gains and chalk up the first downs. Here Western had the advantage, registering five to Illinois' two. Hughes, the big fullback for the Teachers, was the greatest factor in these line plays. Time after time he crashed over dead center, marking up consistent three, four, and five yard gains. The weight was with the Teachers and they used it to good advantage.

Marshall was also outstanding in the backfield for Western. During the latter part of the game, this fleet back snaked off tackle and around ends for plenty of yardage.

The I. C. freshmen looked like a different team from the one which played Hannibal-LaGrange earlier in the season. Browning and Lipe, quarterback and halfback, have come out since the first game and starred in Saturday's encounter. Browning called signals and was outstanding in defense. Lipe intercepted two passes and caught a couple that were meant for him to figure in the longest gain for I. C. Mader and Israel were effective in hitting the line, but were pretty well bottled up by the stubborn Leathernecks defense.

The frosh line fought gamely against the heavier team and was responsible for holding the smashing Western onslaught to prevent any further scoring. Warner Frank did the kicking for the Blueboys and was consistently effective in the branch, booting at one time from behind his own goal line to the Western 40 yard stripe.

Pound 53 Yards In Closing Quarter To Turn Back I. C. Before Homecoming Throng

Battered until their resistance finally gave way, Illinois College's Blueboys took their second defeat in the Little 19 conference this year before a large homecoming throng in a colorful football battle Saturday afternoon when Millikin's offense, stopped until the final period, began making headway through what for three quarters had been a stone wall. That resistance melted long enough for the Big Blue to roll 53 yards for a touchdown and a victory, 6 to 0.

All the gameness, all of the bitter hard tackling, the determined, gritty, defense of the Blueboys melted before that pounding attack, an attack which had not varied materially all afternoon. Tackles and guards, pummeled severely, cracked under the strain.

The Big Blue scored their only touchdown shortly after the final period opened. The heavy Millikin line suddenly found that the Blueboys were tired, and they relentlessly drove them back with a slashing attack through the guards and tackles that carried the ball over 38 yards of strife torn territory, to the Illinois 15 yard line where Fischer, Millikin substitute back, came off his left tackle, toward the sideline, running easily and checking his stride at least four times as Blueboy tacklers flew past him in their effort to bring him down.

At least one Illinois player appeared to have been deceived by the white backs on the Millikin backfield and end jersies, for he slowed down just a moment before taking off for a tackle at the line of scrimmage. That one moment's hesitation put the Millikin blocker in position to take out the Illinois defensive man, and the other backfield men who dashed to the scene, missed their tackles as Fischer, with as nice a piece of choked field running as took place all afternoon, danced his way to the one yard line where the Blueboy safety man hit him, Fischer falling over the line. Allen's attempted placekick for the conversion failed when the Blueboy line converged in front of him and blocked the kick.

Start Another Drive

It was only a short while later that Millikin started another drive through the Blueboys but when three replacements came in for the Blueboys, the fire seemed to go out of the Millikin attack. Tony Donat was forced out of the game when the bruising tackles he had been administering all afternoon finally failed to provide him with sufficient protection and he was taken out to give the fog in his mind a chance to clear.

Each team missed its chances to score. Millikin giving up the ball on the Illinois 12 yard line in the second quarter after receiving a punt near the middle of the field. Led by Gene DeRochi, who had to be removed in the third period becouse of a damaged ankle, the Millikin backs drove down to the Illinois 6 yard line with the aid of one penalty inside the 15 yard line, but they gave up on the 12 yard line when Burgener fumbled on the fourth down when it became apparent he could not make the distance.

Illinois sprang back at the Big Blue, slashing at their line and then going through the air to carry the ball to the Millikin two yard line. Co. Capt. Ray Smith started it when he slipped through the Millikin line for four yards, and the Millikin coach aided the Blueboys when he began shouting directions, the officials assessing a 15 yard penalty for coaching. With the ball in the middle of the field, Mangieri fired a pass to Donat, who carried the ball to the 18, where Art Frey carried the ball nine yards on three tries and then Mangieri stepped through a jam of players to the five yard line.

Old Favorite Fails

Frye made two more yards on the first play, but Capt. Ray Smith lost four when carrying the ball on an attempted reverse. The Blueboys called on their old favorite, the "humdinger" pass, but Alvey, Millikin center, who was on his knees after getting through the line, barely tipped the ball as it was passed forward to Donat, and the pass fell incomplete. On the fourth down, Mangieri shot a pass to Smith, who stepped out of bounds on the two yard line after catching the ball.

The Blueboys missed two other golden opportunities to register touchdowns when two forward passes, thrown over the heads of the Millikin defense, slipped through the arms of the receivers. One of them came in the dying moments of the first half when the Blueboys, after executing their version of a flea-flicker play, suddenly came out of their own territory to the Millikin 30 yard line. Lambert started it with a pass to Mangeiri who took a few steps and then lateraled to Donat, who ran 30 yards before he was pulled down.

On the next play, Lambert, a baseball pitcher, sent a third strike whistling down the sidelines, but it was all George Waller, who played a beautiful game at end, could do to get his fingers on the ball about five yards from the end zone, and the ball slipped out of his hands. Illinois lost the ball on the next play when Lambert completed a pass to Donat for a 10 yard gain, and Donat was smothered as he attempted a lateral to Mangeiri, Lapinski recovering for Millikin.

So went the game, a thriller to watch from the standpoint of interesting and unexpected occurances, and filled with hard tackling, particularly on the part of the Blueboys. A pass which was just a trifle short, causing Tony Donat to back up in order to get his hands on it in the third quarter, after Donat had gotten behind the Millikin defensive man, fell to the ground to spoil another chance.

First Quarter Even.

Play through the first quarter was even, with Illinois getting forced back into their own territory by the kicking of Giraitis, who had the wind on his back. Illinois kept out of trouble largely because they were able to cross up the Millikin defense by quick-kicking over the head of the safety man.

It was during this period that the Big Blue made their first sustained drive, registering three first downs in a row to carry the ball from the Illinois 46 yard line to the Illinois six. Gene DeRochi carried practically the entire burden of that foray, after Burgener started it off with a 12 yard sprint. DeRochi carried the ball five times to make 20 yards to the Illinois 11, but there Burgener tried and failed to gain.

Lull in Plans For Louis, Braddock

Frenzied Negotiations Calm Down As Match Becomes Definite

New York, Nov. 14—(AP)—There was a decided lull today in the frenzied negotiations to match James J. Braddock and Joe Louis in a no decision contest in Atlantic City next February.

After announcing from the New Jersey resort that the match is 99⅓ per cent settled, Herman (Muggsy) Taylor, the promoter, returned to Philadelphia confident everything will be signed, sealed and delivered early next week.

While Taylor was counting out the $100,000 he says he will pay Braddock for the champion's signature, the other principals in the venture turned to rest and relaxation.

Mike Jacobs of the 20th Century Sporting Club, who has Louis under contract, went to Red Bank, N. J., for a week-end among his tulips.

Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, after waiting all morning for a message of some sort from Taylor, spent the afternoon on the golf course.

Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the Madison Square Garden, which has Braddock under contract to fight Max Schmeling for the heavyweight title next June, went to the Yale-Princeton football game.

Taylor said last night he planned to come here to talk with Kilpatrick with a view to clearing away any legal obstacles, but the garden head said it was news to him.

The colonel would not commit himself as to the possibility of legal action if Braddock meets Louis in anything but an exhibition, but he did say "as president of the garden I always have and always will take whatever steps I think necessary to protect the interests of the organization."

Gould said Braddock has agreed to meet the bomber for a $300,000 guarantee and a 50-50 cut in any receipts over $500,000 rather than a flat $400,000 guarantee which Taylor originally offered.

"I'm ready to sign for Jim as soon as the $100,000 comes up," he said. "Jim is entirely agreeable. We're taking a chance of getting him knocked out and may encounter other obstacles, but we'll have to risk it. Purses like that don't come along every day in the year."

The Blueboys were offside on the next play, and the ball moved up to the six yard line, and DeRochi moved it to the five as the quarter ended. Burgener lost three yards on the first play, Millikin lost five more for taking too many time outs, and then Burgener failed to gain on an attempted sprint around the end, fumbled, and Illinois recovered on the 12 yard line.

Illinois punted on the first play, and Jack Hartong cut down the Millikin receiver almost in his tracks with a tackle that started the stands shouting. Then came the Illinois aerial magic which moved the ball in quick thrusts to the Millikin two yard line. Illinois clearly dominated the play of the second quarter.

Steps Out of Bounds.

The Blueboys lost 15 yards on a penalty shortly after the second half opened when Mangeiri attempted to lateral the ball to Capt. Smith after receiving a punt, but the pass was ruled a forward. Ray Smith punted 58 yards into the end zone, but after Burgener made 20 yards on one play, Millikin had to kick and got off a short one out of bounds. Illinois also got off a short kick, and Millikin made another first down and then punted to the Illinois 15.

Ray Smith got away for what appeared to be a touchdown from his own 15 on the next play, but after outrunning the Millikin line from a punt formation, the Blueboy captain was forced to step on the sideline at his own 36 yard marker, when a Millikin tackler hit him. Smith went driving ahead after touching the line with the whole of his foot, shaking off a couple Millikin tacklers to get loose for a run to the goal line, but the officials called the play back.

The Blueboys worked another of their forward-lateral passes, Mangeiri to Donat and then back to Mangeiri, to take the ball into Millikin territory, and then, after another pass had gained six yards, Nick Gilbert, the former Blueboy tackle now playing with Millikin, intercepted a pass with his one good arm and set out for the goal. Mangeiri made a driving head on tackle to throw the 230 pound tackle to the ground on the Illinois 44.

Millikin completed one of its two passes at this stage of the game, from Giraitis to Burgener, the latter taking the ball for an 18 yard jaunt with Blueboy tacklers hitting him from all sides, down to the Illinois 12. Rochkes fumbled on the next play, however and Ford recovered for Illinois.

Two exchanges of punts followed before Millikin launched the only scoring drive of the day, beginning with the first play of the fourth period to march the 53 yards.

Blueboys Tackle Hardest

There was no question of the gameness, fight and courage of the outweighed Blueboys, for they tackled harder than their opponents, charged harder, and fought with determination. For Illinois Jack Hartong, Steve LaRussa, Bill Jones and Capt. Ford stood out in the line, with the whole Blueboy backfield coming up to expectations. Millikin completed only two out of eight passes, and one of these passes gained only two yards.

Donat, until he was removed from the game, was the sensation of the game both defensively and offensively. He dished out a lot of punishment before the hard running Millikin backs finally dazed him. Steve La Russa, likewise played a brilliant game at tackle until he was removed after having one of his trick knees slip out of joint. The damage was repaired on the field, but the Blueboy coach removed him immediately.

There was no defense for the running of DeRochi and Burgener. DeRochi carried the ball carrying load during the first half, driving his short, husky body through the Blueboy line. Burgener was unable to accomplish anything of note until after DeRochi was removed, but then the Millikin ace, who is built almost like DeRochi, took over the work and handled it as well. Simple tackles were not enough to bring him down either one of these boys, they had to be ganged to get them down, after they got by the line of scrimmage. Fischer was almost as good and probably had a little better technique when it came to dodging players.

Collegiate Headliners In The Football World

Minneapolis, Nov. 14—(AP)—Minnesota bull-dogged the Texas Longhorns in typical Biern.an fashion today and when the sun had set on Memorial stadium 45,000 spectators saw the brand of a 47-19 defeat on the invaders from the southwest.

New York, Nov. 14—(AP)—The old army game can't fool the Irish of Notre Dame.

Before the largest throng in the history of eastern football, 80,000 shouting spectators who jammed every crevice of the vast Yankee Stadium on an ideal Indian summer afternoon, the Irish rode the army mule to the very precipice of disaster today and then tamed him with a decisive 20 to 6 victory.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 14—(AP)—Ohio State's scarlet jerseyed warriors defeated Illinois 13 to 0 before a Dad's day crowd of 18,000 today. The Buckeyes crashed over with two touchdowns in the third period. Rabb zipped through tackle for a 29 yard dash to score the first, with Booth scoring the second on a lateral from Dye on the 6-yard line. Illinois threatened only once.

Chicago, Nov. 14—(AP)—The Hoosiers of Indiana University, with quarterback Vern Huffman giving one of the greatest individual performances seen at Stagg field this season, defeated a stubborn band of Chicago Maroons 20 to 7 before 20,000 spectators today.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 14—(AP)—Purdue's boilermakers, master football craftsmen, steamed over Iowa 13 to 0 here today to add a final dismal touch to the Hawkeye's dreary Big Ten season.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 14—(AP)—Pittsburgh's mighty power cracked Nebraska's football barriers today and generated momentum for decisive victory over the Cornhuskers, 19 to 6, in a hard fought intersectional battle on Memorial field.

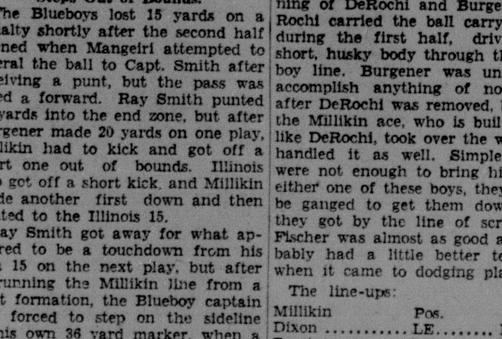

Princeon, N. J., Nov. 14—(AP)—Larry Kelley, who recently said "there can't be an all-America team without me" led Yale to a spectacular 26-23 victory over Princeton today before a capacity crowd of 57,000 who saw the Blues, rallying sensationally around their inspirational leader, come from behind twice to overtake the Tigers.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 14—(AP)—Consistently outgaining its non-conference opponent on both ground and aerial plays, the University of Wisconsin football team defeated Cincinnati University today by a score of 27 to 6 before a crowd of 9,485.

First 'Trailer Town' to Be Doomed by Court Ruling

National interest was drawn to this trailer colony in Orchard Lake, Mich., when it became the first in the country to be doomed by court decision. Justice of the Peace Arthur R. Green held that the trailer at the left violated an ordinance prohibiting construction of dwellings with less than 500 cubic feet of space per occupant. The owner, Hildred Gumarsol, factory worker, is pictured before his trailer, from which he had removed wheels while building an addition. Six other families facing similar suits will be allowed to move without being brought to trial. In Orchard Lake this new mode of living thus was banned completely, since another ordinance levies a prohibitive license fee of $100 an acre on persons renting property for use as trailer camps.

Corn Shortage is Worrying Traders

Assert Nation Has Suffered Huge Falling Off

Chicago.—(AP)—Despite a moderate increase of rural offerings, severe shortage of supplies of corn is persisting at present as the chief bugbear of the grain trade.

The point is being pressed by some market specialists that not only is the United States 1936 corn crop more than a billion bushels below normal but that the country's total corn production for 1934, 1935 and 1936 is approximately one third less than the usual averaged counted upon. It is asserted that thus the nation has suffered a corn shortage of more than 2,300,000,000 bushels.

Largely as a result of unrelieved dearth of any adequate terminal stocks the corn futures market this morning ranged 1¼-2½ cents a bushel higher compared to one week back. Simultaneously, wheat was 1-1¼ up, oats 1-2 advanced, rye showing 1-3¼ bulge, and provisions varying from 5 cents off to 10 cents gain.

Friends of higher prices for wheat emhpasize that domestic flour buying has expanded to a moderate extent. It is contended indications points to more activity in this respect.

Rye is generally regarded as out of line with wheat, and as seeking closer adjustment to quotations for that cereal. Oats are mostly affected by behavior of corn.

Forecast Changes In Horner Cabinet Within Short Time

Finance Director Ames Has Resigned; Rumor Smith to Get Good Job

Springfield, Ill. — (AP)— Several changes in Governor Horner's cabinet of department directors before or during the early months of his second administration were reported probable at the state house today.

Associates of Finance Director K. L. Ames, Jr., said his resignation is awaiting the return of the governor from his post-election vacation. They said he had planned to retire to private business regardless of the outcome of the election.

Ames has been head of the finance department since early 1934.

With official confirmation denied, another possibility being rumored would put F. Lynden Smith of Pontiac at the head of the department of public works and buildings. Smith and others have refused comment.

Since the recent retirement of Robert Kingery as public works director, the department has been under the "acting" guidance of Charles P. Casey of Carrollton. Smith, the Horner campaign manager, holds one of the key posts in the department as business manager of the division of highways.

Friends of Insurance Director Ernest Palmer, who for some time has been reported anxious to retire, have said he will stay on the job through the six months of the regular legislative session opening in January.

Another effort is expected then to pass Palmer's voluminous recodification of Illinois insurance laws, twice defeated by the assembly.

A. L. Bowen, director of public welfare, has been in poor health, but has given no indication of a desire to step out of office.

Other heads of code departments are regarded as fixtures, with no switches anticipated.

Outside the group of ten directors, several vacancies were left unfilled during the campaign and other changes may be made. One of the positions to be filled is the late Packey McFarland's post on the athletic commission.

Find Couple Dead In Tourist Cabin

Identified as Married Residents of Fairfield, Ill.

Belleville, Ill.—(AP)—The bodies of Charles Shehorn, 46, and Mrs. Ida Vaughan, 41, identified as married residents of Fairfield, Ill., by Sheriff Ernest D. Purkett of Wayne county, were found today in a gas-filled tourist camp cabin.

Sheriff Henry L. Siekmann of St. Clair county said evidence indicated the couple had committed suicide, but Burkett was of the opinion the deaths were accidental. No notes were found.

Medical authorities said the man and woman had been dead at least 12 hours when deputies, summoned by a camp attendant, broke into the cabin and found their bodies. The single jet on a gas heater was wide open.

Burkett said Shehorn, a cattle buyer, member of the Wayne county board of supervisors and of the Fairfield board of education, was the father of three children. Mrs. Vaughn, wife of a Fairfield laborer, had one daughter, he said.

Harry Carneghi, the camp attendant, told the officers the couple had arrived in a cattle truck and had taken the cabin shortly after midnight yesterday. Early this morning, while preparing to close the camp for the night, he said he detected the odor of gas outside the cabin. He knocked at the door and, when he received no response, notified the sheriff's office.

HALF-ACRE in EDEN

BY ROBERT DICKSON

Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.

"This is a stickup," the voice said, without nervousness.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MARCIA CANFIELD, daughter of wealthy PHILIP CANFIELD, knows that the neighborhood is buzzing with gossip over the sudden disappearance of FRANK KENDRICK, whose engagement to Marcia has been announced.

Since his disappearance, a shortage in Kendrick's accounts has been discovered.

Refusing to let others know how deeply she has been hurt, Marcia, who is interested in amateur dramatics, goes to the tryouts of the Stagecraft Guild to try for a part in the new play.

HELEN WADDELL, Marcia's closest friend, also attends the try-outs.

After some indecision, Marcia is given the lead in the play. DOROTHY OSBORN, who dislikes Marcia, is given a less important part.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III

IT was a custom in Bobbs Neck to cap almost any evening's pastime or endeavor with hamburger sandwiches and coffee at the Dog Wagon, the only restaurant in town which remained open all night. Here milkmen and other night drivers and the suburban railroad train crews shared counter and tables with formal dress customers on their way home from parties.

Thus to the Dog Wagon came Marcia Canfield and Helen Waddell and a dozen or so other newly-ordained actors and actresses, after the Stagecraft Guild tryouts. It was a midweek night, and bitterly cold, so that fewer townspeople than usual were abroad, and as the hour was only midnight the regular crowd of night-working customers had not yet assembled. None of the counter stools was occupied, so that all of the Stagecraft Guild group found seats together, in a long and noisy row.

Tony Stellicci, the young "chef," to whom the acquaintanceships he formed among the patrons were far more sustaining than all the food in the place, chose to take their orders himself, waving the inevitably adenoidal waiter away from such intimate contact with the elite.

Having served with that dispatch which characterizes lunch counters and is equaled nowhere else in the world, Tony leaned on the cash register and looked affectionately upon the social cream of the night's business. At 25, Tony found life good. He had a nice job, where he met people; although his mother was dead he managed to maintain a comfortable home for his semi-invalid father; he had friends and the endless variety of suburban and waterfront recreations. He had also, he reflected—but then the glare of headlights through the restaurant windows caused him to turn and look out the frost-smeared panes. Two cars had stopped in the diagonal parking spaces at the curb. Their lights went out; Tony did not know that their engines were still turning over. Nor did he know that while four men crossed the sidewalk toward the restaurant, a man remained at the wheel of each car and still another man had taken shelter in a doorway at the street intersection, a dozen paces away.

The four entered the restaurant, stopping just inside the door to stamp the snow off their shoes and rub the chill out of their hands. It was not surprising that their coat collars were pulled high and their hats low over their faces, for the wind was strong and snow was flying. Three of the men started toward seats at the rear end of the counter; the fourth paused, head bent, to remove his eye glasses and wipe the steam from them.

Tony moved down the counter toward the three who were taking seats. Midway, he was halted by sight of a pistol in the hand of one, and by the voice of the man who had waited near the door.

"This is a stickup!" said the voice, without nervousness. "Everybody remain seated. Keep your hands above the counter. We've got you covered from both ends!"

"And you, chef," the voice of the leader continued, "lean on the counter, with both hands! You, too, waiter! Talk to the customers. You folks go on eating. Don't anybody put his hands below the counter!"

* * *

TONY watched the two men who were making the quick collection of valuables. Watched them bitterly. He was proud of the little restaurant, proud of his job. He felt that somehow the honor of his employer and of himself were being ruined; his position here was as host, the customers were as guests.

The collection was finished and the two men with the loot left the restaurant. The man at the rear rose from his stool, held his pistol in a pocket and joined his companion at the door. The latter tried to reach the cash register, on a shelf back of the counter, but failed.

"Come here, chef," he called. "Hold your hands together, down in front of you. Open this machine."

Tony walked toward him. He heard one car back from the curb and move off. Furiously his mind sought some means of thwarting these remaining bandits. But there appeared to be no help. Angrily he pressed the "No Sale" key and the cash drawer opened.

The man with the glasses reached for the bills, leaning far over the cigar counter. His face, Tony thought, was not one he knew. The other man stood with his back to the restaurant, a hand on the doorknob. Tony thought of the telephone, and glanced at it over his shoulder. The glance was not lost on the cash drawer looter. He murmured something to his companion.

The man at the door drew from a pocket and handed over an exceptionally large pair of pliers. The man with the spectacles reached across the counter and snapped a phone wire with the cutting edge of the tool. Tony stiffened, as if he had had a physical shock.

The robbers went out, with a parting admonition. There was the sound of the second car pulling away.

With a sob, Tony ran around the end of the counter to the door. "I'll get the cops!" he called back, and dashed out, heedless of the weather. Racing down the street to the police station, two blocks away, he fought for composure, welcomed the wind chilling his hot face.

He had recognized the pliers.

* * *

THE police sergeant and two patrolmen, routed from the comfort of the station house, found the Dog Wagon's customers quite recovered from any fright, but the thrill remained and a tornado of talk was in progress.

After a futile few moments the sergeant conceived the idea of pursuit along the bandits' automobile tracks in the fresh snow, and the patrolmen set out in their car, returning soon, however, to report that the tracks had all but disappeared by reason of the wind and continuing snow fall and, anyway, they were found to mingle with other fading tracks on the main highway.

The sergeant meanwhile, having sent out such alarms as occurred to him and which he relayed by various messengers to the police station, began the tedious task of listing the money and articles stolen. He was somewhat hampered by the fact that general conversation continued at high speed, frequently including even the person whom the sergeant was trying to question. Fortunately no individual loss appeared to have been great. Several persons had been robbed of watches, all had lost money, from small change to $10 or so. Someone remarked that the robbers should have waited until a Saturday night, when wallets would have been full.

It was the arrival of the first of the milkmen's hour customers which caused the sergeant to adjourn the questioning to the police station, and he ordered all concerned, excepting Tony, to follow him.

"Didn't recognize any of the guys, eh, Tony?" the officer asked as he started out.

"Never saw any of them before, far as I know," Tony replied, hoping his voice was steady.

"Well, I'll see you later, when I've finished with these," said the sergeant, motioning the company to join him.

All of the Stagecraft group went out, still talking excitedly, exchanging constantly revised notes on their reactions. Tony turned to the new customers.

The new customers wanted to know all about it. Tony gave the first of a series of recitals that was to continue, as other customers arrived, until dawn, when the day chef came on duty.

* * *

TAKING off her gloves at the police station, Marcia gasped. She had for a time forgotten one item among the contents of her handbag, now miles away in the possession of the bandits. Her mother's ring!

The ring was years old and wearing thin, so that its sharp edge hurt the finger. During the day Marcia had removed it and dropped it into her bag, intending to have it repaired. She had forgotten the fact until, stripping off her gloves, she noticed her hand bare of its usual single ornament.

It was the most cherished of her possessions, a ruby ring that her mother had left to a very young Marcia, 17 years ago. It had always seemed a most enduring link to the mother whom Marcia, as she grew up, couldn't remember very well.

The sergeant laboriously wrote down its description.

Tony Stellicci stopped in at the police station on his way home from work at dawn. As he discussed the robbery with the sergeant, he glanced through the list of the articles stolen. After the name of Marcia Canfield he read of the ring. It was described in some detail, and—"It was the lady's mother's," the sergeant had written.

Tony went home with tight lips. He, too, had the childhood memory of a mother. It only made harder the job he saw ahead.

Journal And Courier Cooking School Will Open Tuesday A. M.

Mrs. Katharine Baldridge, who is to conduct the Journal and Courier Cooking School at the Fox-Illinois theater four mornings this week, will arrive tomorrow from Kokomo, Ind., where she completed a highly successful school yesterday. With her will be her assistant, Miss Lona Thomas, and together these talented and experienced homemaking experts will give to the housewives of Jacksonville and community a daily program of exceptional interest.

The Journal and Courier, with a number of business establishments cooperating, are sponsoring the Cooking School, believing that the women of this community will benefit from and appreciate the classes. Last year the Journal and Courier Cooking School drew an attendance of more than 5,000 during the four days.

Doors Open 8:30—School at 9.

Doors of the theater open at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the four days of the school, with the classes getting under way at 9 a. m. There is no admission charge, all women being cordially invited.

Several schools have arranged schedules of home economics classes so that the students may attend the Cooking School and hear Mrs. Baldridge, who is one of the leading experts of the country in home and cookery problems.

Many Firms Cooperate.

Stores and companies cooperating in the Cooking School, furnishing equipment, articles of food for the classes, and having exhibits, are the Jacksonville Coca Cola Company, Gustine's furniture store, Morgan Dairy, Jacksonville Supply Company, Jacksonville Ice & Cold Storage Company, Rainbow Paint and Paper store, Bassett's Jewelry store, Barickman Drapery Company, Hofmann Floral Company, Peerless Bread Company, Hopper Shoe store, Birnbaum's Market, Illinois Power & Light Corporation, Red and White stores, Montgomery Ward, Ideal Baking Company, City Garden. Products of Lever Brothers & Company, including Spry, Rinso, Lux, Life Buoy soap, etc., and of the Jaques Manufacturing Company, including K. C. baking powder, will be exhibited.

A demonstration kitchen, a display of new homemaking equipment and furnishings, daily cooking lessons which encompass every phase of essential cookery—these are the highlights of the week. Mrs. Baldridge is a brilliant speaker, whose experience includes many years of lecturing before women on every phase of homemaking.

Will Give Recipes.

She not only promises housekeeping news of the greatest interest to every woman of Jacksonville but her generous contribution of recipes is one of the most appealing factors of her School. Every woman wants to surprise and delight the family with a new cake, a luscious new meat dish, a delicious frozen dessert. Dozens of such recipes are discussed and demonstrated at the Cooking School.

There is no charge whatsoever for any of the Cooking School activities. No tickets are required at the door. No admission slip of any kind need be presented. All that is necessary is to come early, find a good seat, and be ready when the lecturer walks out into her kitchen and begins her fascinating program.

Mrs. Baldridge has an excellent voice which can be heard all over the theater. She goes smoothly and quickly about her cooking in the kitchen for she has had a wealth of experience in homemaking, in special training for her Cooking School lecturing, in perfecting her knowledge of foods, cookery and home appliances in all parts of the coutnry. She brings this experience with her charm and good stage personality to Jacksonville this week, in the Cooking School, one of the outstanding occasions of its kind in the community.

No Details Overlooked.

This School is planned in every detail for the housekeepers of Jacksonville. The interest and cooperation of their shops, grocery stores, markets and other merchants have been enlisted, for Mrs. Baldridge knows that it is important to work with and describe only such suppplies as her listeners can get at their own merchants.

Many of these stores are cooperating to make the sessions this week the best and most interesting ever given a Cooking School audience. When the School opens Tuesday at 9 o'clock, the crowds of women who have assembled will see a new kind of kitchen set up at Mrs. Baldridge's direction. Here the new recipes, new suggestions for planning daily meals, ideas about preparation and serving of food, new tricks, new methods, new ways of beating, combining, cooking will be an important part of each day's demonstration.

At the same time Mrs. Baldridge will talk about new discoveries in foods, new ideas in health and diets, new theories of menu making. Her program also includes a discussion of table setting, child diets, a description of new equipment which has come out this year for kitchens.

The dishes cooked each day at the School will be given away.

25 Floats Feature I. C. Homecoming Parade Saturday

Merchants Join Students For Annual Event Staged Here Yesterday

A parade five blocks long, made up of twenty-five floats, pajama-clad freshmen, and shouting, singing Homecomers immediately preceded the Illinois College Homecoming football game with James Millikin University yesterday afternoon. Kenneth Mann, '36, Jacksonville, was chairman of the parade committee.

The spectacle started on Mound avenue and proceeded on Lockwood to West College. The line of march was east on College avenue to Clay avenue; north on Clay to East State; back on East State to the square, and around the square; west on State street to Dunlap court; and from there back to College avenue, where the parade broke up to go back to the campus for the game.

Several ingenious floats were among the large number prepared by college organizations. Alpha Pi Eta Society, with a corps of washerwomen, displayed a line of washing urging the I. C. eleven to "take Millikin to the cleaners."

Pi Pi Rho showed a solemn burial plot purporting to contain the remains of Millikin's victory hopes. Sigma Pi's float consisted of a life-size reproduction of a steam-roller.

Phi Alpha Literary Society had prepared a twenty-foot snake to show how low Millikin's spirits would be after the game.

A large number of business firms entered the parade this year, the first time in several years that groups outside the campus had participated in the parade. Jacksonville entries were: Hopper and Hamm, Matthews' Sweet Shop, Peacock Inn, Giffen Brothers, Davidson's Cafe, Gordon's Garage, Jacksonville Bus Lines, Meadow Gold, Pine's Garage, Cornbelt Chevrolet, Illinois Theater and German Brothers Garage.

College organizations entering floats were: Phi Alpha, Sigma Pi, Gamma Nu, the "I" Club, the Illinois College sound truck, Pi Pi Rho, Gamma Delta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Chi Beta, Alpha Pi Eta, the class of '38 and the class of '36.

The queen's float, decorated to resemble a lawn with a flowered-covered trellis behind the throne, took a prominent place in the parade. Miss Margaret Cronan, Queen, and Misses Carol Davis, Adell Reed, Mary Mina Thompson and Betty Marsh appeared on the float in full regalia.

Mann was assisted in arranging the parade by a committee of Jacksonville seniors, Dorothy Deane Baldwin, Henry Dollear and Aileen Burge.

The registration at the college office yesterday included the following names: John J. Monroe, '33, Collinsville; Malcolm Smith, '32, Chicago; Hewitt McQuerry, '36, Chicago; Gene Way, -35, Arenzville; Paul Sweney, '34, Salem; Ruth W. Woods, '20, Springfield; Betty J. Noted Adventurer To Speak Here On His Life in Tibet

Enders Lecture Announced For Music Hall At College

Professor Mary Anderson, chairman of the MacMurray Lecture committee, announced yesterday that the Gordon Enders lecture Monday evening will be held in the Music Hall on the college campus, and not at the high school auditorium, as was the first lecture of the series. The program will begin at 8.15.

Mr. Enders, acclaimed as the greatest living authority on Tibetan folklore and adventure, was born in Essex, Iowa, and when only 4 years old went to live with his family on the Indo-Tibetan border.

His parents established the home atop a 7,000 foot mountain that at the northernmost tip of India straddles the British-made divisions between the two countries.

Thus, among a population which is basically Tibetan, Mr. Enders learned the native language as soon as he came to know his mother tongue. And so Tibet became not only his hobby, but his life's work.

After returning to America for his college education, Gordon Enders fought through the World War as a flier with the French and U. S. armies. Then he returned to Tibet and became foreign adviser to the Grand Lama. In connection with his services to the mystical ruler of The Hermit Kingdom, he was honored with appointment to full cabinet rank, to membership in the upper house of the Tibetan National Assembly, and to title in the Tibetan nobility.

Mr. Enders' book, "Nowhere Else in the World", has long been a best-seller and has been translated into French, Spanish and Swedish. The popularity of his narrative style is shown, too, by numerous articles which he has had published in "The Saturday Evening Post", "Liberty" and several of the national news syndicates.

In both his books and his lectures, Mr. Enders has shown himself to be not only a keen observer and an accurate commentator on Tibet, but also a superb story teller. Those who listen to Lowell Thomas on the radio will recall Thomas' enthusiam one evening, after he had met Enders at a luncheon, when he devoted nearly half of his famous broadcast to recounting one of Enders' tales of life among Tibetan princes and monastic leaders.

Enders' royal master, the Grand Lama, has plans for opening Tibet to the world, and these plans Enders shares openly with his lecture audiences. His vision of Asia is breathtaking, and his insight into affairs which are making history in The Hermit Kingdom both today and tomorrow are astounding.

Welfare Work Is Talked at Club Meeting Saturday

Dr. Sam Ryerson of Springfield Is Speaker at D.A.R. House

Stressing the great work being done in the welfare department of the state, Dr. Sam Ryerson of Springfield, who has served in the department under three governors, spoke to the Jacksonville Woman's club Saturday afternoon at the regular meeting held in the D.A.R. Chapter House.

Mrs. M. S. Zachary, president, opened the meeting and presented Mrs. Roy Davenport as chairman of the day, who in turn introduced Dr. Ryerson as an authority upon welfare problems in the state.

"The great importance of Public Welfare is not generally understood," said Dr. Ryerson. "There are 12,000,000 unemployed in the United States at the present time. Institutions are over-crowded with inmates—6,000 feeble minded; 11,000 in prison; 534 deaf and 282 in the School for the Blind; 246 are in the eye and ear infirmary; 743 in the Soldiers and Sailors Home; 273 at Geneva and 694 at St. Charles. These figures are appalling in the responsibility they place upon the state.

"Other work in the department includes supervision of children's diseases; prevention of blindness and old age assistance." The chief aim in Dr. Ryerson's visits over the state is to arouse interest in the people.

"A reformatory is a stigma for any child and there should be institutions where young people can be sent to get a new slant on life, for 62 percent continue in lives of crime after coming out of the schools. Club women can be a force for great welfare work if they will study the problems and organize to stamp out crime and other elements which are a menace to right living."

A musical program was given preceding the address, by DeVere Brockhouse, who sang "In a Persian Garden," "Roadways" and in response to an encore, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." He was accompanied at the piano by Miss Lillian Braden.

Following the program, refreshments were served in the dining room with Mrs. Paul S. Black, chairman of hostesses. She was assisted by her committee and by Mrs. Miller Weir and Mrs. T. J. Pitner, who presided at the coffee table, which was most attractive in all of its appointments, including a large bouquet of roses and chrysanthemums as a centerpiece.

Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. J. Marshall Miller, general program chairman; Miss Charlotte Sieber, music chairman and Mrs. Paul S. Black, social chairman.

HAISTS ENTERTAIN AT CONCORD SUPPER

Concord, Nov. 14.—The supper given by Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Haist on Friday evening in the basement of the M. E. Church in honor of the Boy Scouts and soft ball team was well attended and proved to be a very enjoyable occasion to all concerned. Promptly at 7:00 o'clock, Mr. Haist called the assembly to order and asked Rev. G. M. Hovda to offer prayer and return thanks. When all were seated the ladies in charge of the supper served the refreshments.

After supper, the roll of scouts was called by Lozelle Nergenah, scribe of the troop and response was made by naming some battle. The chairman of the evening then called on members of the advisory committee for remarks. Responses were made by C. C. Mason, F. L. Ogle and W. W. Williams. Scouts James Johnson and Fred Willard were then called on for a signal drill. The first slogan was, "Be Loyal To Your Scout Leader," and the second one, "Be Ever Faithful;" the signals were pronounced letter perfect by the Scoutmaster. The two scouts took it turn about handling the flags. The Scouts then sang an old song entitled "Clementine." Rev. G. M. Hovda and Rev. C. W. Andrew made inspiring addresses to the boys. Paul Ogle, Assistant Scoutmaster, then made a little speech to the boys and had them recite some of the precepts of their organization.

The Scouts present were as follows: William Clement, Joseph Parlier, George Deitrich, Robert Berry, James Johnson, Raymond Hacker, Fred Willard, Carl Thixton, Lozelle Nergenah, Eugene Gaines. Ten present and several absent. The Scouts were seated at one table with assistant Scoutmaster Ogle and Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Haist and eight guests were seated at the other table. Rev. G. M. Hovda made a short prayer at the close, dismissing the audience. Mr. Haist thanked all those who had helped in the event, especially the ladies who served the supper.

Rev. C. W. Andrew attended a meeting of the Ladies Aid at McKendree Chapel on Friday and made an address to them.

Confederate Seal Found Here To Be Discussed At Historical Society Meet

Many persons will wonder how the original seal of the treasury department of the Confederacy found its way to Jacksonville. This is the interesting and important story which Prof. William F. Leavenworth of Illinois College will relate at the meeting of the Morgan County Historical society on Friday evening Nov. 20, 1936. This seal has been in his possession for many years. It was given to him by his father, Captain Abel E. Leavenworth, Company K. 9th Vermont Volunteers, and it is interesting that he and his company were the first to enter Richmond.

As Prof. Leavenworth will state this was not accidental but was due to his father's previous experience and fitness for the duties to be performed in the newly captured capital city. The seat of the Confederate government was here and all the valuable papers were supposed to be in Richmond, although the high-up officers of the confederacy tried to carry off as much as they could. One of the duties of the Union officers was to try to intercept as much of this as possible.

Prof. Leavenworth will relate how Captain Leavenworth and his company got into Richmond and how and why he was appointed assistant Provost Marshall of Richmond and had especial charge of the treasury building. He had access to all the papers nad documents and helped to assemble those which the special officer sent from Washington took with him for safekeeping and future use.

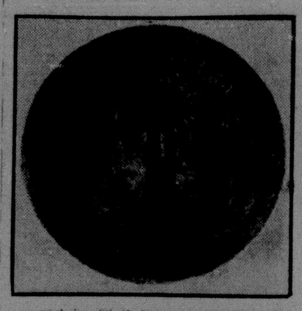

Out of the things which were left, Captain Leavenworth took many interesting trophies back to his home in Vermont where a large number of them now form an important part of the historical collection of that state. The above facts explain how Captain Leavonworth came into possession of what seems to be the original seal of the Confederate treasury. The reason it was not carried off to Washington was that a new seal had replaced it, because the lower plate was cracked. However, this was the seal used on most of the documents of the departments.

It is felt that those who attend the meeting of the Morgan County Historical society at the Peacock Inn at 6:30 next Friday evening will not only be entertained but instructed by Prof. Leavenworth's paper as well as that of Miss Lorene Martin of Virginia on the cutting off of Cass county from Morgan.

Prof. Leavenworth will also exhibit a number of other Confederate relics among which is a chair which he brought from the office of President Jefferson Davis in the capitol at Richmond.

Tickets can be obtained at the Peacock Inn or from Mrs. Henry English or Miss Fidelia Abbott.

Jacksonville Daily Journal

JACKSONVILLE, ILLINOIS, SECTION TWO SUNDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 15, 1936

Says Fast Train Service Would Increase Business

Putting on a fast train through this city may lead to an actual increase in business done by local manufacturing plants, according to statements of leading industrialists of the city, who have expressed themselves as very much in favor of such an improvement in railway passenger service. Interest in the effort to secure a fast train through this city between St. Louis and Chicago, with a Kansas City connection, is increasing, and the matter has been taken up by the Chamber of Commerce.

Secretary R. E. Welch has written a letter to Alton Railway officials in Chicago in regard to the matter. Two officials of the road were in the city recently and were told of the desire of local business men for better service.

Comments on the need for fast train connections with the larger cities are becoming more and more favorable, and men who would use the trains are becoming more emphatic in their requests that something be done by the railroads to improve travel facilities, now that passenger traffic is again on the increase.

Robert Capps, official of J. Capps & Sons, was most emphatic in his plea for better train service here. "Several times a week," he said, "we are compelled to drive to Springfield to catch trains or to meet people coming here to do business with the company. We do not have nearly so many calls from manufacturers' representatives as formerly, because they will not come unless they can drive their cars.

"There is practically no train service here. I was compelled to buy a ticket for Springfield before I could secure one for New York, and had to check and transfer a heavy trunk in addition to the ticket inconvenience. I believe we would see an increase in business if buyers could reach our factory on convenient trains. We have members of the company and salesmen making trips constantly for which they would be glad to use fast trains in and out of Jacksonville."

When asked if he wished to comment on the need of better train service for this city, J. C. Lukeman was emphatic in his approval. "I certainly do," he said. "I can say that if we had decent passenger service in and out of Jacksonville, I would use it in trips to Chicago at least once a month. The inconvenience of driving to Springfield loses the railroad a lot of patronage. At the same time, Jacksonville loses business because people from other places pass through this city driving to a point where they can catch a train for Chicago. They criticize us for not having adequate train service, and it is not our fault. We are entitled to service as good as the railroad gives elsewhere."

A. S. Crane, manager of the Illinois Telephone Co., pointed out that the service should be made to pay, but expressed himself as heartily in favor of better train connections. "Of course I am in favor of better railway service in and out of Jacksonville," he said. "We need adequate connections with Chicago, St. Louis, and Kansas City, and I would no doubt use such service if it were available."

H. L. Caldwell, who does considerable traveling in his business, declared that the effort to get more train service should be greatly multiplied. He said: "I make a trip to Chicago about once a week. I have to drive to Springfield and pay storage on my car. Fast train service to Chicago would be a great convenience to me and to many others who must travel in and out of Jacksonville frequently."

SOCIAL SECURITY EXPLAINED BY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. 9—Are wages from all types of work included as a basis for Federal old age benefits?

A. No. Wages for certain specified services are not counted in the computation of benefits.

Q. 10—Specifically, what services are excluded?

A. —The Social Security Act defines employment for the purpose of determining old age benefits as "Any service, of whatsoever nature, performed within the United States by an employee for his employer, except—

"(1) Agricultural labor;

"(2) Domestic service in a private home;

"(3) Casual labor not in the course of the employer's trade or business;

"(4) Service performed as an officer or member of the crew of a vessel documented under the laws of the United States or of any foreign country;

"(5) Service performed in the employ of the United States Government or of an instrumentality of the United States;

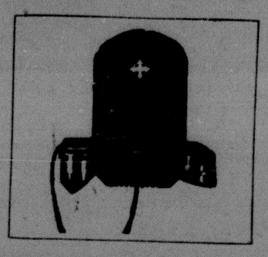

"(6) Service performed in the employ of a State, a political subdivision thereof, or an instrumentality of one or more States or political subdivisions;

"(7) Service performed in the employ of a corporation, community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual."

The Railroad Retirement Act of 1935 provides that employments included under the Social Security Act "shall not include service performed in the employ of a carrier as defined in subdivision (a) of section 1 of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1935."

Q. 11. Are all other employments except those just specified included?

A. Yes, if performed by an employee for his employer in any of our States, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, or Alaska. Benefits will be paid to an individual on the basis of wages from all included employments after 1936 and before he reaches age 65.

Forest Gives Up a Modern Moses

A healthy, blue-eyed baby boy, carried out of the forest by a big, black dog, brought happiness to WPA Worker Louis E. Crawford and his wife of near Pearl River, La. They are shown with the baby in the top photo. A day later, the baby was taken to New Orleans Charity hospital. But the Crawfords expect him to be returned. They would like to adopt him and, maybe give him the name Crawford already has chosen—Moses.

Medieval Pageantry as King Opens Parliament

Britishers who lined the route of King Edward VIII from Buckingham Palace to the Parliament were disappointed in the absence of customary pageantry due to rain, but the ceremonies at the House of Lords lacked none of the traditional colorfulness. He is pictured above being helped into his cloak by the Duke of Beaufort.

Young eyes
are doubly sensitive to eye strain

Because children know little about cause and effect, they readily accept conditions which an adult would quickly recognize as undesirable. That's why extra care must be taken to see that children have enough light, and that it doesn't glare in their eyes from the light source or the printed page. Does your child read by an I. E. S. (Illuminating Engineering Society) lamp? These desk and floor lamps have been scientifically worked out to give adequate light without glare. And they cost no more than any good lamps. Make sure that your child has the right chance in life, that she does well in her studies, that her health is not affected in a hundred and one different ways by eye-strain, that reading and study seem an agreeable task to her, and not an unavoidable drudgery.

NEW "PASSION PLAY" FILM TO BE SHOWN

On Wednesday night, November 18 at 7:30 at Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church there will be shown the new motion picture film of the "Life of Christ," and the "Passion Play," depicting the story of Jesus, from the Nativity to the Ascension, which is based upon, and patterned after the world-famous Freiburg and Oberammergau "Passion Plays" of Europe, and which was actually filmed in Europe, the Holy Land, and Egypt.

A complete and appropriate musical score will be played throughout the entire film, on special sound equipment, reproducing some of the world's choicest and most exquisite orchestral, organ, and choral music by famous composers, blending in with the magnificent scenes, which portray, in authentic and historic fashion, the Life, Crucifixion, and Resurrection of Jesus. The film was produced in Europe, Palestine, and Egypt, and has won the profound admiration and approval of more than fifteen hundred of the largest churches in the United States and Canada, having been exhibited to more than one-half a million people, during the past two years, many times to overflowing audiences.

A very spiritual and reverent atmosphere is established and maintained throughout the entire program and leaves the audience in a meditative, prayerful and heart-searching mood, provoking thought concerning the reality of the Christian principles in their daily lives. The film is one of unusual beauty, and has been highly praised wherever it has been shown. The public is cordially invited, and tickets are not required to gain admission. A silver offering will be taken to assist in defraying expenses. The film is being sponsored by the Ladies Aid society of the church.

NOTICE

This is the season when new cars are introduced and dealers pointing all their improvements and advantages.

We know many will stress on all steel bodies, even though just a few months ago, they condemned them, or else, they sold an all steel body, when they didn't have it.

All steel bodies, were introduced by Dodge and Plymouth years ago, and if there is anything to experience and practice making perfect, we feel it is true in the making of an automobile all steel body. We believe you as a buyer will find this true in the next couple of years.

Many dealers will dwell on hydraulic brakes; claiming great things for their style of brake. Dodge and Plymouth cars and trucks have had hydraulic brakes for years, they have gone through many years of experimental work, and have tried all styles until they have adopted the genuine double acting hydraulic brake which they hold patents and exclusive rights on. Again we say, with many years experience and by holding patent rights on the genuine double acting brake, makes it almost impossible for others to make a brake that will be true and positive at all times and hold up for the life of the car.

Try the genuine double acting hydraulic brakes on Dodge or Plymouth and you can easily see and feel the difference.

We invite your inspection.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

THE peculiar cassowary produces an unearthly croaking sound that lasts for several minutes. When excited, the bird snorts, but the call to the young sounds like the lowing of a cow. The cassowary is to be found in Australia and its nearby islands, and is entirely flightless.

Hog Prices Down Nearly 15 Cents

Chicago, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Hog prices declined around 15 cents per hundredweight in today's slow week-end trade, but there was no activity in other branches of the livestock market.

A few scattered sales of good and choice mediumweight butchers were made at $9.25 to $9.60, the top which compared with yesterday's $9.80 peak. Lighter weights were quoted down to $8.50.

A sharp increase in livestock marketings burdened all departments the past week causing substantial price downturns for practically all slaughter animals except prime steers and yearlings which were steady.

Hogs weighing less than 180 pounds lost 25 to 50 cents, pigs dropped 50 to 75 cents and other weights and sows were 10 to 25 cents off. All grades of cattle except prime steers and yearlings and some middle grade yearlings lost 25 to 50 cents, in instances more for weighty steers. Fat lambs booked 50 to 75 cents, but aged sheep were mostly steady.

The hog run was the largest of any week in two years, totaling more than 159,000 head compared with 75,000 a year ago. With receipts bulging sharply on other branches of the trade, heavy supplies of meat animals as well as all types of poultry acted as the principal bearish factor in the markets.

The week's steer top of $12.10 was the highest in nine months. The closing lamb top was $9..

Testing Cattle in Cass County for Tuberculosis

Dr. D. A. Cahill, representing the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture, together with Doctors O. C. Alexander, C. C. Crank, O. T. Hart, T. J. Foster and F. W. Seecamp, began work in Cass county last week testing cattle for tuberculosis under what is known as the "area plan." The character of their work is very similar to that which has been done in previous years, and which is probably familiar to most cattle owners. They began work last week in Virginia, Bluff Springs and Beardstown Townships. Dr. Cahill states that he expects to have five additional veterinarians to begin work the first of this week, and will complete all townships as quickly as possible. He estimates that it will take approximately six weeks to complete the county, at which time it is expected that every head of breeding and dairy cattle will have been tested for tuberculosis.

As it has been very definitely proven that tuberculosis in cattle may be transmitted to humans, this work is a matter of public health, and it is required by Federal law that all breeding and dairy cattle be tested.

Dr. Cahill and the veterinarians working with him expect to notify each herd owner in advance of the approximate time that they will be at his farm to test his cattle, and where possible and convenient they urge that every herd owner have his cattle up near the house where they can be tested with a minimum loss of time.

As this is a very credible work and is done for the benefit of the herd owner as well as from a standpoint of public health, it is urged that every owner of breeding and dairy cattle in Cass county cooperate with Dr. Cahill and his men in this work.

Fear of Thallium Danger Plants Unfounded

Will thallium compounds used in rodent control prove harmful to crop growth?

No; says the U. S. Biological Survey, not even to weeds under the conditions used in the control of rodents by properly trained personnel employing standardized methods.

For more than 10 years thallium compounds have proved useful in local control of rats, Zuni prairie dogs, California ground squirrels and other rodents especially hard to combat by other means. No adverse effects on plant growth had been observed by the Biological Survey. Several writers,

Twenty Million Turkeys Slated for Thanksgiving

Probability that turkey will receive a unanimous vote as the preferred meat for Thanksgiving is seen this years as 20,000,000 birds head for the market. This is the largest crop on record, according to reports from the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

With other meat prices in the higher scale bracket and with incomes above those of last year, the turkey is certain to be the center of interest in many meals. How much it will be enjoyed all depends on its preparation and cooking, says Miss Glenna Henderson, extension specialist in foods, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

First of all, thorough cleaning is necessary, says Miss Henderson. The family turns "thumbs down" on any pin feathers. Immersing wing tips in boiling water for a few minutes is the easiest way to remove wing tip feathers. A small pair of pliers helps with this task. Pin feathers are removed easily with a strawberry huller. The bird is then singed, washed and wiped thoroughly. Some homemakers prefer to use cold water, while others scrub the poultry with soap and water. Both soap and soda are effective to wash away the surface fat, but thorough rinsing with cold water is required afterwards. Drying the bird thoroughly on the inside prevents the stuffing from becoming soggy.

Trussing forms the bird into a compact mass so that the wings and legs do not dry out during cooking, explains Miss Henderson. The best method is to slip the skin of the neck as far back to the body as possible and cut off the neck close to its base.

The skin is then folded over the back of the bird and fastened. The bird is filled with a favored stuffing and sewed up. The wings are folded so that the tips are close to the body and the ends of the legs are drawn together with a long, strong cord. The same cord is then brought around the tailpiece, crossed over the back, run across the upper tips of the wings, then the lower tips and tied across the back.

As for roasting, Miss Henderson advocates an even moderate temperature of 300 degrees at all times. About 20 to 30 minutes of roasting is allotted to each pound of bird. The turkey is placed on a rack in a flat, uncovered pan. No water is necessary, according to Miss Henderson. If the bird is not quite as brown as desired the oven may turned up for the last 15 or 20 minutes of baking. Rubbing unsalted fat or oil on the skin will help to give a shiny gloss.

This method applies to a young light turkey, many of which will be on the market this winter owing to short feed situation, says Miss Henderson. She prefers cooking both old and young turkeys with the breast bone down, since this will allow some of the fat to penetrate throughout the bird. However, when old turkeys are roasted the roaster is covered over.

A test for doneness is to thrust a steel skewer into the thigh next to the breast. If the juice is not red, the turkey is done. Use of the low temperature throughout eliminates the need for basting, says Miss Henderson, and also follows out the general rule for cooking all meats.

Wheat Climbs To New Season High

Chicago, Nov. 14—(AP)—In a market that climbed today from first to last, Chicago wheat dealings ended strong showing December contracts at the highest weekly close this season.

With the end of navigation from Canada only two weeks off, traders took increasing notice of reports indicating that the narrowest adjustment in fifteen years prevails between world wheat supplies and probable demand. One leading authority said this would be bad enough in times of peace, but with the European countries armed to the teeth and glaring at each other the possibilities in wheat prices have hardly been realized.

One specially stimulating factor was a report that Argentina will not be an active shipper of new crop wheat to Europe until late in January. It was stated that old crop wheat in Argentina is now reduced to almost bare bins, the Argentina government wheat board having but little wheat left on hand except a small reserve for domestic mills.

Wheat closed firm, ¾-1¼ cents above yesterday's finish, December 116¾-¾, May 114¼-½, July 100¾-101, Corn ¼ off to ¼ up, December 102¾-1, May new 95¾-96, July new 92¾-¾, Oats ¼-½ avanced, December 43¾ and Rye showing 1 cent to 1¼ cents bulge, December 90. Provisions results varied from 2 cents decline to 20 cents gain.

Helping to give Chicago wheat prices a skyward tilt from the outset was an about-face by the Liverpool market which closed decidedly higher with Sterling up a point, whereas Liverpool prices earlier were tending downgrade.

Slight Downward Trend in Stocks

New York, Nov. 14—(AP)—Slipping tendencies again prevailed in today's abbreviated stock market session as traders evinced some misgivings over the possibility of federal legislation to stem the foreign buying rush in American securities.

Brokers also though the sharpness of the post-election advance may have had something to do with the "corrective" reversal.

At the same time the continued brightness of business and industrial news helped to offset the backward tilt.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off .3 of a point at 70.9, its fourth successive day's setback. Transfers tatalled 1,154,330 shares against 1,745,280 last Saturday which was the largest two-hour turnover since February.

Mining shares again led the retreat with declines of 1 to 2 points. Among these were Anaconda at 49, Kennecott 56¼, American Smelting 96¾, and Cerro De Pasco 67¼.

The Mobilfort Is on Its Way

By THOMPSON AND COLL

Right Now It's ANYBODY'S Ball

A husky-throated roar rolls up from the crowd..... It's a pass! High into the air shoot two struggling figures,—climbing, stretching, striving from tense toes to grasping finger tips, with every ounce of mental and physical energy concentrated on the play.

Right now, it's anybody's ball. But in a moment some extra burst of power or a last desperate effort gives one of them temporarily undisputed possession. The victor knows as well as the vanquished, however, that the next down starts the contest all over again. The final result is always in question until the last whistle blows. Anything can happen between now and then.

We Never Stop Trying

To this habit of thought, characteristic of American sportsmanship, every failure is simply a challenge that awakens deep-rooted inspiration to wipe out that defeat in victory. Every fall is only another lesson in how to keep one's feet. It is clean, wholesome and full of healthy vigor, — the bright and shining light of free thinking, free enterprise and unrestricted progress. It never stops trying.

Contests Toughen Capacity

The amazing development of American business is one notable expression of this buoyant point of view. Be it small or large, the history of any business is a daily succession of contests packed full of dynamic action. These steady and toughen the capacity of everyone in the organization, enabling them to handle emergencies right in the stride of ordinary routine.

The shipping clerk, avalanched by a madhouse mountain of outgoing merchandise, methodically melts it into a smoothly flowing line of on-time deliveries. The weekly payroll, eternally staring the owner in the face, drives him to accomplishments he would not attempt for himself alone.

Success Is Self Discipline

Such is the stuff that success is made of,— intelligent enthusiasm and backbone-building self discipline. It is the secret, if there is a secret, of running a good newspaper, raising a prize steer, being a star salesman, managing a well-trimmed budget, of realizing any worthy ambition.

To itself and to Jacksonville, the Journal and Courier says, "Get out there and fight! In America, success is anybody's ball."

It's anybody's ball! Don't yield
An inch! Just keep the fight
In steady movement down the field
To where the goal's in sight.

Play each down as though your work
Alone must win the game.
Not one faint thought to quit or shirk
Your inmost heart may shame.

For things that seem to block our way
Are only there to test
And prove our worthiness to stay
And battle with the rest.

Everything in life's like that.
Each moment give your all
And then you'll find success is close,
It's anybody's ball.

The sports world is a lively place. Interesting things are going on in it all the time. One sport follows another in rapid succession and sometimes two or more are offering exciting material for our sports writers to tell you about. When you settle down to read the eye witness accounts of your favorite team or player in action, your own expert knowledge of the game tells you that our sports writers are not only good writers, they really give authoritative comments on the basic factors of any contest,—ability, sportsmanship, endurance, training, tactics, weight, speed,—whatever has any important outcome on the result.
